

Hannah Varnadoe

4-H

Personal Summary

I participate in many areas within 4-H. Including but not limited to civic engagement, leadership development, beef cattle production, horticulture, poultry production, and public speaking, etc. I compete in many different areas and on different levels including county, state, and national. I also volunteer within different areas in 4-H, such as 4-H camps and Master Gardner Programs. I am currently serving as the District VII President for the second year.

Life Skills

Teamwork

- Collaborating with others is an important skill that is needed in all aspects of life. Teamwork is not just getting along with your team, it's also good communication and so much more.
- I worked with my officer team for district council to plan our district VII events.
- I worked with the council to plan and organize our district VII social.

Communication

- When competing in the public speaking, I learned how to get my word across using my demonstration and speeches.
- When serving as the district VII council president I must communicate with my other officers I serve with and others in the council.
- While serving on the leg committee we had to learn new ways to communicate without the ability to page between the two chambers.

Leadership

- I serve as the 4-H district VII president; I reside over meetings and correspond with many youths around my district.
- I'm on the Florida 4-H executive board and served as the chair on the welcoming committee for 4-H leg. I worked with others to create and present a presentation for the youth who attended.
- I served as the AG senate chair for 4-H leg, I ran all three-committee meetings, and helped the youth in my committee sponsor their bills that made it to the floor.
